

BAYEUX TAPESTRY

Engle Ridge Farm Grand Traverse County

This cider was named for the 70m (230 foot) Bayeux Tapestry which was woven in the 11th century to commemorate the Battle of Hastings in 1066. In this battle, a small Norman Army invaded the Anglo-Saxons to begin their conquest of England and establish a new monarchy.

This cider represents another encounter between the French and English - the combining of the French bittersweet apple called Binet Rouge with two English bittersweet varieties - Yarlington Mill and Ashmead's Kernel. The cider is dry and structured with a broad display of flavor bound to the palate by an array of cohesive tannins.

These apples were grown among over a dozen other heirloom varieties on the Engle Ridge Farm in Grand Traverse County.
